Dr. Alfred N. and Lynn Manos Page Prize for Sustainability Issues in Business Curricula

The Darla Moore School of Business at the University of South Carolina is honored to announce the 8th annual Dr. Alfred N. and Lynn Manos Page Prize for Sustainability Issues in Business Curricula. This prize is awarded to the best course syllabi for integrating sustainability into business curricula.

The Page Prize has two objectives: to encourage efforts to expose business students to state-of-the-art sustainability knowledge relevant to the natural environment and to demonstrate the Darla Moore School of Business' commitment to promoting environmental sustainability in business education.

Although the objectives of the prize specifically concern the natural environment, full consideration will be provided for submissions concerning a range of sustainability dimensions relevant to the business world. Thus, we welcome submissions from diverse topic areas, including good governance, social entrepreneurship, cross-sectoral partnerships, poverty alleviation germane to fostering business understanding and practices that promote environmental health and/or stewardship.

Winning entries will be added to the Moore School Page Prize website, making them available to educators interested in incorporating sustainability issues in their business curricula.

Awards

The Grand Prize is $1,000, plus a framed print of “Aegean Sea #6” an original diptych by Lynn Manos Page. Honorable Mention prizes will also be awarded at levels of $250 each. Each finalist will receive a print of Aegean Sea #6. A faculty committee from the University of South Carolina will choose the winners.

The deadline for submissions is Monday, March 28, 2016, by 5:00 p.m. Eastern time.
